BEST MUTUAL MASTURBATION

In a country of 300 million people, less than 6,000 industry insiders get to decide on the best movies and actors of the year. Conflict of interest? What conflict of interest?

BEST CENSORSHIP

Remember when the Oscars were live and fearless and people could speak freely without getting cut off as soon as they said something political or controversial? Neither do we.

BEST ORAL GRATIFICATION

When movie people get a prize, they suddenly love everyone, especially all the people they had to blow to get the part. Hollywood, where only tears of joy can drown out the memory of what you did to get there.

BEST RECORD OF GETTING IT TOTALLY FUCKING WRONG

Just a few examples: Saving Private Ryan loses to Shakespeare in Love. Pulp Fiction loses to Forrest Gump. Citizen Kane loses to How Green Was My Valley. Woody Harrelson nails the role of Larry Flynt and gets snubbed!

REMEMBER: IT'S NOT WHO YOU KNOW, IT'S WHO YOU BLOW!

AN UNHEALTHY ATTITUDE

In a glaring example of how divided our nation has become, almost half the country is still refusing to comply with the law of the land. At this writing, 21 of the states in our Union have enacted laws and measures to opt out of or oppose provisions in the Affordable Care Act. Many of these states are refusing to set up state-based exchanges, making it harder for their citizens to utilize the law and find the healthcare coverage they need. Twenty-three states have also rejected Medicaid expansion, a key provision of the ACA.

This kind of stubbornness is all about political ideology and has nothing to do with providing a democratic population with adequate choices in healthcare. Opponents of the law have been focusing primarily on the issue of mandates and penalties—an issue already resolved by the United States Supreme Court—while ignoring the fact that blocking full ACA implementation would leave behind people that don't qualify for insurance subsidies or traditional Medicaid. That's a huge segment of the population. Cutting them out doesn't make any ethical or economic sense. A country's workforce has to be healthy and productive to contribute to growth and progress.

Whenever a federal program is enacted for the common good, narrow-minded ideologues will kick and scream against it, mostly for political gain. But I still have faith in the pragmatism of the American people. As the ACA becomes as much a part of everyday life as Social Security, Medicare and other proven federal initiatives, the virus of selfish opposition will mercifully disappear.

TO HELL WITH THE MONEY CHANGERS!

RIGHT-WINGERS BLAST THE POPE FOR HIS TAKE ON GLOBAL CAPITALISM AND THE PLIGHT OF THE MASSES.

Rush Limbaugh and Sarah Palin hate Pope Francis, and that's all the recommendation you need that he may be blessed with divine wisdom. Hallelujah and about time for a break between those who affirm the sanctity of human life in the spirit of Jesus and the charlatans of the Christian Right who believe only in the sanctity of Wall Street greed.

I still don't agree with the Catholic Church when it comes to a woman's right to control her own body, but at least this leader of the world's 1.2 billion Catholics appears to be compassionate. He believes that carrying on so much about the rights of the fetus while ignoring the fate of the child is rank hypocrisy and an insult to any notion of a caring, almighty being.

What caused Limbaugh and Palin to blast Pope Francis as a dangerous subversive was his brilliant Apostolic Exhortation channeling the essential message of Jesus: It's the rich who had better worry about getting into heaven because of the abject contempt they have for the poor, meaning most of the planet's ordinary folk. As the pope put it: "Today everything comes under the laws of competition and the survival of the fittest, where the powerful feed upon the powerless. As a consequence, masses of people find themselves excluded and marginalized: without work, without possibilities, without any means of escape."

That's exactly the moral critique in the story of Jesus throwing the money changers from the temple. In Palin's view, Jesus would undoubtedly have been "too liberal," the most hateful epithet she leveled at the pope. Meanwhile, Limbaugh blasted Francis's concern for the poor as "just pure Marxism coming out of the mouth of the pope."

I believe that's being too kind to Karl Marx, since the pope's statements are laced with a forgiving grace toward the superrich if only they will change their ways, while the author of Das Kapital thought moral appeals to the superrich were a lost cause. Then again, Marx couldn't hold out the choice between eternal life in hell or heaven as an incentive for good behavior.

In his exhortation the pope scathingly criticized those who live for profit alone as they ignore the swelling ranks of the poor: "While the earnings of a minority are growing exponentially, so too is the gap separating the majority from the prosperity enjoyed by those happy few. This imbalance is the result of ideologies which defend the absolute autonomy of the marketplace and financial speculation. A new tyranny is thus born, invisible and often virtual, which relentlessly imposes its own laws and rules....The thirst for power and possessions knows no limits. In this system, which tends to devour everything that stands in the way of increased profits, whatever is fragile, like the environment, is defenseless before the interests of a deified market, which become the only rule."

Pope Francis knows of what he speaks, having had years of firsthand experience honing his mission. He chose his papal name after the 13th-century saint who devoted his life to serving the poor. And in his native Argentina, as Cardinal Jorge Bergoglio, he reportedly went into the streets to sit for hours and eat bread with the most destitute.

Shortly after becoming pope, surprising only to those who don't know him well, Francis invited nearly 200 homeless to join him for dinner at the Vatican. Recently it was reported that he had been sneaking out of the Vatican at night, dressing as an ordinary priest in order to minister to the poorest of Rome's citizens.

Pope Francis now exhorts Catholics to focus on the repugnant economic divide that haunts the soul of society and threatens its stability: "No to the inequality which spawns violence," he wrote. "When a society—whether local, national or global—is willing to leave a part of itself on the fringes, no political programs or resources spent on law enforcement or surveillance systems can indefinitely guarantee tranquility."

Before serving almost 30 years as a Los Angeles Times columnist and editor, Robert Scheer spent the late 1960s as Vietnam correspondent, managing editor and editor in chief of Ramparts magazine. He is now editor of TruthDig.com. His latest book is The Great American Stickup: Greedy Bankers and the Politicians Who Love Them.

A SUPREME INJUSTICE

OUR HIGHEST COURT SNUBS A LEGAL CHALLENGE TO SHUT DOWN THE NSA'S WHOLESALE DATA-MINING.

The Electronic Privacy Information Center (EPIC) petitioned the U.S. Supreme Court to overturn a Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court order that Verizon hand over all its customer records to the National Security Agency. The outcome, as CommonDreams.org reported in November 2013, didn't surprise me: "We Don't Wanna Hear It." The august justices gave no reason for denying the Fourth Amendment to all of us, but I figure it's because EPIC bypassed lower courts.

How dare EPIC be so audacious? That's simple, wrote Common Dreams' Jon Queally: "No other federal court would have the authority to challenge the secrecy inherent in the NSA program," which had been okayed by a Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court judge.

What do you think George Washington would have thought of that? Or James Madison? Of course, they were in another country, weren't they? But even in today's America, despite the Bush-Cheney-Obama entrenched secrecy of the executive branch, we still may have another shot at salvaging our Fourth Amendment right to privacy.

As Wired.com reminded anyone paying attention, the Supreme Court's "inaction means that there isn't likely to be any court resolution to Constitutional challenges to the metadata program for years. Legislation, however, is pending to gut the program."

Not so fast. Such legislation could eventually be shot down by Chief Justice John Roberts's conservative High Court unless the next President respects privacy and can appoint like-minded justices if there are vacancies.

Meanwhile, our so-called Justice Department remains unswervingly loyal to President Obama's insistence on secrecy and denial of individual Constitutional rights. As Common Dreams reported, it told EPIC "to pursue its case in the lower courts first," but failed to mention that the government has tried to hamper review of previous challenges.

But undaunted, the American Civil Liberties Union continues to persistently challenge the NSA's ever-increasing invasions of our privacy. "This kind of dragnet surveillance is precisely what the Fourth Amendment was meant to prohibit," stated Jameel Jaffer, the ACLU's deputy legal director. "The Constitution does not permit the NSA to place hundreds of millions of innocent people under permanent surveillance because of the possibility that information about some tiny subset of them will become useful to an investigation in the future."

The NSA and Central Intelligence Agency want to know everything about our lives under the guise of protecting us from terrorism, but we actually need protection from our government. It treats us all like traitors being controlled by foreign governments.

As The Wall Street Journal reported, the CIA "is building a vast database of international money transfers that includes millions of Americans' financial and personal data. …

"Like the NSA program, the mass collection of financial transactions is authorized by a secret national-security court, the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court."

Hey, wait a minute! I learned long ago, as many of you did, that the CIA is forbidden from including Americans in its foreign-intelligence databasing. But, The Wall Street Journal pointed out, "it can conduct domestic operations for foreign-intelligence purposes." And that allows the FBI's secret partnership with the CIA "to collect large amounts of data on international transactions, including those of Americans, as part of the agency's terrorism investigations."

As a reporter who came close to a Pulitzer for warning what the un-American USA PATRIOT Act would do to our privacy, I bring you this confirmation from The Wall Street Journal: The NSA, CIA and FBI can keep an eye on us because Section 215 of the Patriot Act permits the government to obtain "tangible things, including [your telephone and financial] records, as long as the government shows it is reasonable to believe they are 'relevant' to a terrorism investigation."

But the government never defines "relevant." So, adds The Wall Street Journal, its surveillance agencies are authorized to collect "relevant" records "on millions of people not necessarily under suspicion."

As this issue went to press, federal judge Richard Leon sounded at least an encouraging note. He ruled that the NSA's "indiscriminate" data-mining is unconstitutional. The Supreme Court will soon be forced to decide whether it is privacy's friend or foe. H

"In the aftermath of the disastrous Republican shutdown, the GOP rolled out its new mascot today."

MARTHA MACCALLUM

Fox News Channel chief Roger Ailes must be running a stupidity sweepstakes. He probably pays his bottle-blond Aryan airheads based on how high their sound bites score on the outrage meter. You gotta admit, that would explain a lot. Unfortunately for morning propaganda mistress Martha MacCallum, she's up against the likes of Megyn Kelly. It's hard to beat inanity like "Santa is just white" and pepper spray is just "a food product." MacCallum, who took over from Kelly as coanchor of America's Newsroom, is smart enough to know she's going to have to ramp up the stupid to meet the expectations at Fox News.

MacCallum's job, as far as we can tell, is to 1) be blond; 2) flash legs that make good Christian male viewers torment their wives with comments like "Why can't you have legs like that, you fat pig?"; and 3) deliver propaganda as though it's straight news by lacing the "facts" with biased turns of phrase and outright lies.

At press time, Martha's latest attempt to meet the sewer-level Kelly Standard was part of her neverending whine session about glitches in the Obamacare rollout: "What I keep coming back to in all of this is unlike other issues—Katrina or the Iraq War—this is something that touches so many people's lives across the country, and you don't know whether the President is going to be able to successfully dodge it."

On the surface, she was coldly suggesting website glitches are worse than thousands of dead in a war based on lies and a natural disaster that wiped out half a city. But there was an underlying suggestion, one aimed directly at her viewers: Obama's crisis was less politically survivable than Bush's because it might directly affect more of the kind of people who watch Fox News—you know, the white, conservative, Christian-majority kind. People whose lives are worth more in the New Order of her mind.

When it comes to boosting the fantasy power of Fox News' six-figure Stepford Wives, nothing is off the table. Just to keep the devotees drooling, Martha occasionally sheds her wedding ring and calls her coanchor Bill Hemmer "dear" and "sweetheart" on air to pump up rumors that she's spreading the eagle wings for him backstage. Her husband Daniel Gregory must be wondering why she doesn't just wear his testicles for earrings while she does the "news."

But Fox's fetish for racially pure fembots isn't just soft porn with clothes on. It's more sinister than that. Watching Fox News is like looking into a creepy eugenics exhibit. They might as well be saying, this is what the whole world could look like if you just let us carry out our Fair and Balanced Final Solution.

If you want a truly terrifying glimpse of a Fox-ruled future, just check out Country Living magazine's photo tour of MacCallum's Cape Cod beach home. The place is so design-catalog Caucasian and mercilessly anal, it looks like Martha Stewart exploded in it. Growing up in that environment, MacCallum's kids could be shooting up their school by graduation day. Better get 'em on the mood stabilizers now, Mom.

A couple of years ago progressive talker Ed Schultz was taken in by MacCallum's facade of idiocy when he called her "dumb" for saying that the government should stop sending out Social Security checks so it can "handle those things like the two wars in a much better, stronger fiscal position."

"This is just another example of how dumb some of those Fox anchors really are," Schultz said, pointing out that MacCallum was suggesting "we shortchange veterans and the elderly so we can fight more wars."

Schultz got blasted by the MacCallum cult. After all, Martha has a bachelor's degree in political science and a successful "journalism" career! How could she be dumb? A lot of dumb people have degrees and careers, but we too suspect MacCallum isn't as empty-headed as she lets on. She's well aware that her job is to make ideological crapola sound like common sense to people with zero critical thinking skills.

Take, for instance, the time back in 2009 when she "inadvertently" used some old video of Joe Biden saying "the fundamentals of the economy are strong." It was supposed to show that the Obama Administration was out of touch, but it was actually an old clip of the Vice President quoting John McCain! When the bullshit hit the fan, Mendacious Martha was trotted out to apologize and utter this whopper on behalf of Fox News: "When we get something wrong, we admit it." As one online commenter pointed out, it was a dangerous precedent. If Fox News starts apologizing for misleading its viewers, when will they find time to do the actual misleading?

In another notorious moment, MacCallum couldn't stop laughing during a video clip of a disabled woman tumbling backwards out of her wheelchair while trying to go up an escalator. For more than a few seconds, Mean Martha reverted back to the teen bitch who laughed at anyone not in her stuck-up high-school clique. Sure, we all laugh at inappropriate times and what's funny isn't usually what's politically correct. But it's notable how often right-wing slipups show an utter lack of empathy for anyone not like them. To preach in broadcast after broadcast against so-called entitlements that help the poor, the elderly and the disabled, you have to be pretty fucking coldhearted. Are we making too much out of a minor moment? People who study antisocial pathologies do it all the time. Patterns of behavior, especially the ones people try to hide, show who a person really is.

Martha, you may lose the stupidity sweepstakes, but you'll always have the only award that stinks so bad, its putrid smell will never leave you. Better stock up on Febreze. H

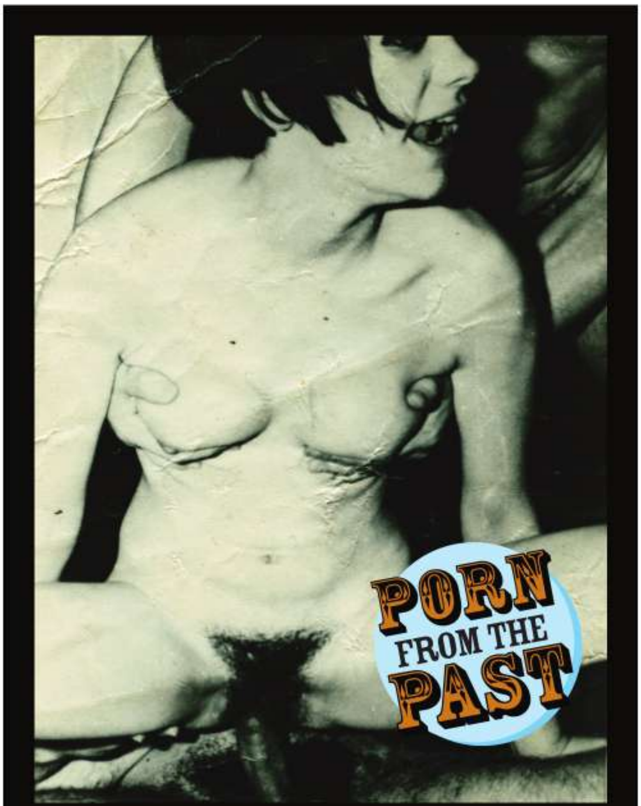
WHAT WOULD SARA BLAKELY LOOK LIKE WITH A DICK IN HER MOUTH?

Like a billion bucks! Richer than God herself, at age 42 Sara Blakely is the youngest self-made female billionaire in the world. How did she do it? Technological advances? Medical breakthroughs? Nope. By cramming women—and now men—into tight, binding undergarments like sausage into casings. We'd like to give the Spanx creator the walloping she so richly deserves. At HUSTLER we strongly urge the ladies to let it all hang out.

DISCLAIMER. Parody: No such picture of Sara Blakely actually exists. This composite fantasy picture is altered from the original for our imagination, does not depict reality and is not to be taken seriously for any purpose. Truth is, we can't totally dis Sara. She recently signed the Giving Pledge, promising to donate half her wealth to—get this—nix restrictions that hold back disadvantaged women and girls.



We're not sure exactly how many men Evelyn is doing in this photo. One clue might be her nickname, Evelyn Eleven. Thanks to J.H. of San Diego, California, for this vintage photo. Send your smut of yesteryear to HUSTLER's Porn From the Past, 8484 Wilshire Blvd., Ste. 900, Beverly Hills, CA 90211.

If you're lucky enough to live near Spokane, Washington, you can visit the bare beauties daily. But that privilege didn't come easy. The Coalition for Community Values lobbied City Council—unsuccessfully—to classify the lovely ladies as adult entertainment and restrict where they can set up shop.

"Our busiest days by about 100% are Topless Tuesdays and Thursdays," owner Sarah Birnel explains. "They want us to cover the lower part of the breast below the areola and the bottom half of the anal cleft."

Though the self-righteous Coalition continues to picket, its protests have actually backfired. "I tell you what," says Devil's Brew barista Jessica Etchart, "we have gained so many regulars from them being out on the street, it has been insane."

Backfire

This country's healthcare mishap should be seen as a blessing after the egotistical white male Republicans got their asses kicked by a black man—a man clearly smarter and stronger. We need to let these white men vent. It's necessary to let them regain their delusional self-worth. History has shown if these types of white men are pushed far enough, they are capable of going on a collective homicidal rampage.

Never mind that Obamacare is based on the works of a Republican think tank and a Republican economist. Never mind that if it does fail, it will ensure an eventual single-payer healthcare system. Basically, Republican politicians are doing all the work for Democrats. Outspoken Republicans are actually fucking themselves. The only way they will avoid a single-payer system is to support Obamacare. But it's probably too late for that considering the rhetoric. Smile inside while keeping a straight face.

Prison Crush

I've been looking at your magazines for almost two years, and I've got to hand it to you—the women are gorgeous. Every issue gets better and better. This one issue really caught my attention: December '13 with Jessa Rhodes [Undeniable] on the cover. But as beautiful as she is, the woman who really caught my attention was Sabrina in Beaver Hunt. She's from Trenton, New Jersey, so what I'm looking for is a way to get in contact with her or for her to get in contact with me.

I'm currently incarcerated real close to where Sabrina resides. I'm at Garden State Youth Correctional Facility. I would like for her to know she has an admirer, and it would be a great pleasure to get to know her. If you can help me out in any way, I would highly appreciate it. Thank you, HUSTLER Magazine.

—Kevin Feliz aka Future
Yardville, New Jersey

We'll forward your letter, Kevin. But the rest is up to the lovely Sabrina, who gets in contact with a fellow Beaver on pages 100-101.

Jail Bait

I'm a 32-year-old bisexual female with big 38DD tits and a very well-groomed pussy with a landing strip. I'm currently incarcerated in the Arizona State Prison. My boyfriend recently sent me a few issues of HUSTLER, and my pussy really got extremely wet and super horny over a few of the girls!

I loved the February '14 Beaver Hunt girls Naiya and Ali Cat. I rubbed my pussy and fingered it while I imagined I was eating their pussies out! I would love more than anything to rub my pussy over their pussies! My tits would really love to be caressed by Naiya and Ali Cat. Not to mention my pussy would be so grateful just to have their lips and mouths all over it! I love HUSTLER! —Kelley McNaughton
Goodyear, Arizona

Second Coming

Your second fantastic layout of Rikki Six [Unstoppable] was easily the sexiest and most beautiful woman in the February '14 issue. No other babe came close to having Rikki's radiance or overall sex drive. In her fairly short time in porn, Rikki has staked her claim as a total sex object for horny men.

HUSTLER introduced Rikki to the world a year ago on her motorcycle wearing high black boots [Submissive Sexpot, February '13]. Bringing her back for more obscene pictures was a brilliant decision. As is so often the case, it is most difficult to say which one of her photos is my favorite.

With literally a perfect performance by Rikki Six, it is unfortunate to have to mention two management mistakes: Why in the hell wasn't Rikki the centerfold, and why wasn't Rikki's name on the cover at least? We would have known that meant only one thing: Buy HUSTLER! —Bill Smith
Chicago, Illinois

Rikki Six has been scoring reader raves ever since the "total sex object" debuted as our February '13 centerfold.

WTF of the Month

We get a lot of crazy letters. Here's one of our favorites.

I found my aluminum foil cap to keep out the gamma rays, and I am thinking very clearly. Beware of the aliens; they are cloning the absolute best-looking pussies there are. They are not here for philanthropic means but for money, much like the Spaniards stole gold from the Aztecs. They know that the money is in pussy! You're against a highly intelligent technology that can perfectly clone the absolute perfect pussy. Porn will always revolve around the most beautiful, well-presented pussies, and the aliens realize this. Knowing this, I am giving you the advantage. More pussy! —George Gerhab
Hellertown, Pennsylvania

Suggestion Box

I just received the February '14 issue, and it's great as always. I especially love the classics. Jacqueline [Endless Summer] is spectacular. I wish you would print the miniature photos of her full page. The ones where she is standing and laying out flat on the lounge chair. They are such great shots, they should be full size. Big real boobs, nice hairy bush, nice feet.

Swingin' Sooners

My wife and I are wondering what happened to all the swingers lists that you can get through the mail. I am 56, and my wife is 28. I am looking for other men or couples to fuck April hard! I can do okay but not like I used to. Please help us to find others to help us be sexually wild!

April is ready to do it all, and I'm ready to watch and join in. So if you know any swing clubs in our area, please let us know. We do not have a computer. —Russell Cormack

There are swinger clubs in Oklahoma City, Tulsa and Guthrie, but you'll have to find a way to get online. These establishments frequently change their locations and telephone numbers.

I love each issue of HUSTLER. You have the greatest adult magazine ever. In the Beaver Hunt section of the February '14 issue you featured two photos of an amazing lady from North Carolina named Ali Cat. She's sexy, beautiful, hot, intelligent, driven, hardworking, dedicated and submissive. In other words, Ali Cat is perfect. I would love to see her in a full layout showing her well-toned body. Ever since I saw her, I've dreamed of taking her to dinner or shopping or maybe getting her an hour massage.

I'd love to show Ali Cat what a great guy I am and how controlling I can be. I would make sure I used nipple clamps, handcuffs, blindfolds, ropes and a leather paddle. I want to make her ass cheeks rosy red, her nipples pointy and aching, her face a place for my hand to slap, and each of her holes a place for my nine-inch cock. I'd love to beat the ever-living shit out of her while I verbally tell her what to do or just humiliate her. We could role-play anytime also.

Please print more photos of Ali Cat, preferably tied up and bent over. I'd love to make her my personal sex slave. Thank you for putting her in such a great magazine. —Shawn Connelly

Honest Flub

I'm responding to my letter about Kelly Nichols that you published in the February '14 issue ["Dicksy Chick"]. I don't care anything about these so-called she-males, etc. I want you to retract that letter and say for the record that you are sorry for the terrible mistake you made.

Our apologies, Dennis! We misread your hen-scratch and thought you were pining for transsexual porn star Kelly Michaels. We would never suggest that chicks with dicks get you hotter than two rats fucking in a wool sock behind a heater in hell. H

FROM LARRY FLYNT'S HUSTLER CLUB

IF THIS GUY FUCKED YOUR WIFE, SHE LIKED IT. THE STAR OF SHOWTIME'S REALITY-TV HIT GIGOLOS IS MORE THAN A DICK FOR HIRE. HE'S A MAN WHO MAKES IT HIS BUSINESS TO KNOW WHAT WOMEN WANT AND NEED. LISTEN CLOSELY.

"When I was 16, a good friend of mine was 17. He was stripping. I thought it was pretty cool, amazing. I remember he had a nice truck and he bought a new car. I didn't really come from too much. My parents didn't have much money, so that was something that I always did want to do."

"I've never had problems talking to women. I didn't realize that it was called a gift. I never had problems getting girls. Looks and taking care of yourself doesn't hurt, but there's much more to it, especially in this day and age. Number one is confidence, and confidence takes practice. You can't be afraid to try and fail."

“I preach being healthy. When you become healthy and eat a better diet, not only will you start looking better, you’ll start feeling better.”

“Even if you’re a little bigger and you don’t take care of yourself that well, obviously you can resort to comedy and being funny, but that also takes confidence. It’s getting yourself out there and doing it. If someone is going to be paying for companionship—someone to hang out with—they’re obviously going to want someone who is, in their opinion, the total package. Who they can have a conversation with, has schooling, is educated but knows how to have fun and is funny as well.”

“I don’t have sex with women I’m not attracted to. They’re not paying for sex. They’re paying for my time. If we establish a connection and there’s sexual energy, it may happen, but it’s not a guarantee. There are pretty much only two reasons why nothing definitely wouldn’t happen: Number one is obviously having a bad attitude. They’re there for the wrong reasons. They’re there to think I’m meat. I’m not a big fan of that, so then nothing will happen. The other reason is hygiene. I don’t mind curvy women as long as they take care of themselves.”

“One of the worst ones was a client who had a cavity, and of course she had to be up in my face the whole time while we were talking and everything. It was really bad and hard. If you haven’t been to the dentist in the past six months, get your ass in there.”

“Believe me, I’ve been treated like meat in a couple of situations, but clients do learn quickly that there’s a lot more to it, and I don’t sell myself as meat at all. I have to establish a connection with them. It’s just like any other relationship—if I’m in a relationship and we have a connection and there’s some sexual energy there. I’m a very sexual person. We call it the Boyfriend Experience. That’s what it is. There’s definitely a market there to sell yourself and sell sex, but that’s not what I do.”

"Some of the coolest people I've ever met on this earth are clients who are married and they're open to things like this. They're honest. They're happy. One of the best nights I've ever had was at a swingers event. There's no judgment."

For full access to the Nick Hawk empire, including his sexpert site, music and social media, go to NickHawkExplicit.com.

The full line of Nick Hawk sex toys, fetish gear, books and jewelry is available at HUSTLER Hollywood stores nationwide and HUSTLERHollywood.com.

For bookings, go to Cowboys4Angels.com.

Gigolos airs every Thursday at 11 p.m. Eastern and Pacific on Showtime.

"If I do it too much, it definitely can be a job. People say if you're in a relationship it's a full-time job and it can be. It takes a lot of work. All of my regular clients, they pretty much are my girlfriends. I'm there for them. Especially if I'm not seeing them for a few weeks, then we have an overnight or a weekend, there's a lot to catch up on. I used to see a lot more than I do now. Now I typically only do three a month and maybe one or two meet-and-greets. I was accepting a lot of bookings once the show took. I was seeing way too many. It takes a lot out of you."

"Male escort and a male gigolo are definitely two different terms. I'm a gigolo. A gigolo is a companion. An escort is pretty much there for sex. When I first started out, the words meant the same thing to me. They definitely don't now."

"We're all hustlers. Anyone who is successful is a hustler. If you're not hustling, you're not going to get ahead in life. That's for sure. If you're not hustling, you're doing something wrong."

"A man can slow the fuck down. That's what a man can do. If he wants to see her again and satisfy a woman, he needs to take it slow. Orgasm starts before the bedroom, and that is no bullshit. It starts with a good conversation, making her feel comfortable, warming up, being a little funny, paying attention to her, complimenting her and then being a little flirty. You start kissing her and rubbing on her and touching her before the bedroom. And when you get to the bedroom, take it slow there as well. The slower you go with a woman, the more it will pay off."

"I am a professional panty dropper. You can quote me on that."

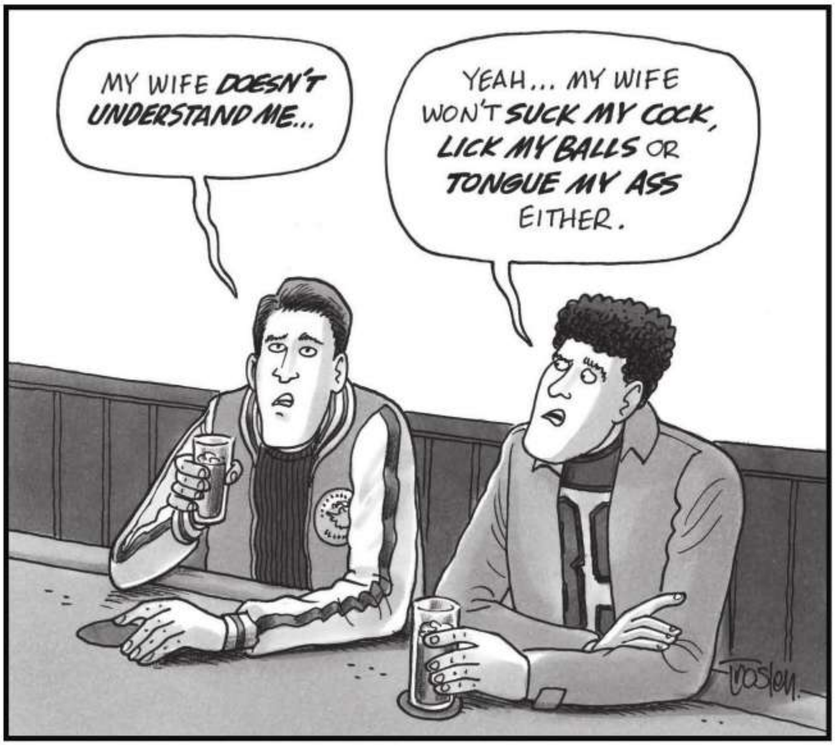
"Male fans come up and they'll say, 'My wife or my girlfriend watches your show and she makes me watch it.' Or 'Every time I put your show on, it gets me laid.' Everybody jokes around with us, wants to buy us a drink, have fun, hang out, and a lot of people look up to us. A lot more so than when it first started. A lot of it was, 'Yo, what the fuck is this? Who the fuck are these guys?' And we weren't taken that seriously, but we are now."

"I never had a problem picking up women. That's just what you were supposed to do. In my mind that's what society taught me. So that's what I attempted to do just about every night that I went out. It wasn't until recently where I started being more in my body and making it more of an experience than just getting laid. I think that's a mistake that a lot of guys do when they're trying to pick up women. They just get laid and get it over with. It should be more of an experience. It is a little weird, but it's true."

"I used to fall in love a lot. I was a sucker for it. It was great at the beginning and horrible at the end, but I take a different approach to that now. I don't let relationships get to a point where there are expectations, so I never let jealousy evolve. I do believe that we all are looking for that special person, and if that person came along, I would be open to it. But until that happens, I don't do full-time relationships and I don't let things escalate past a certain point."

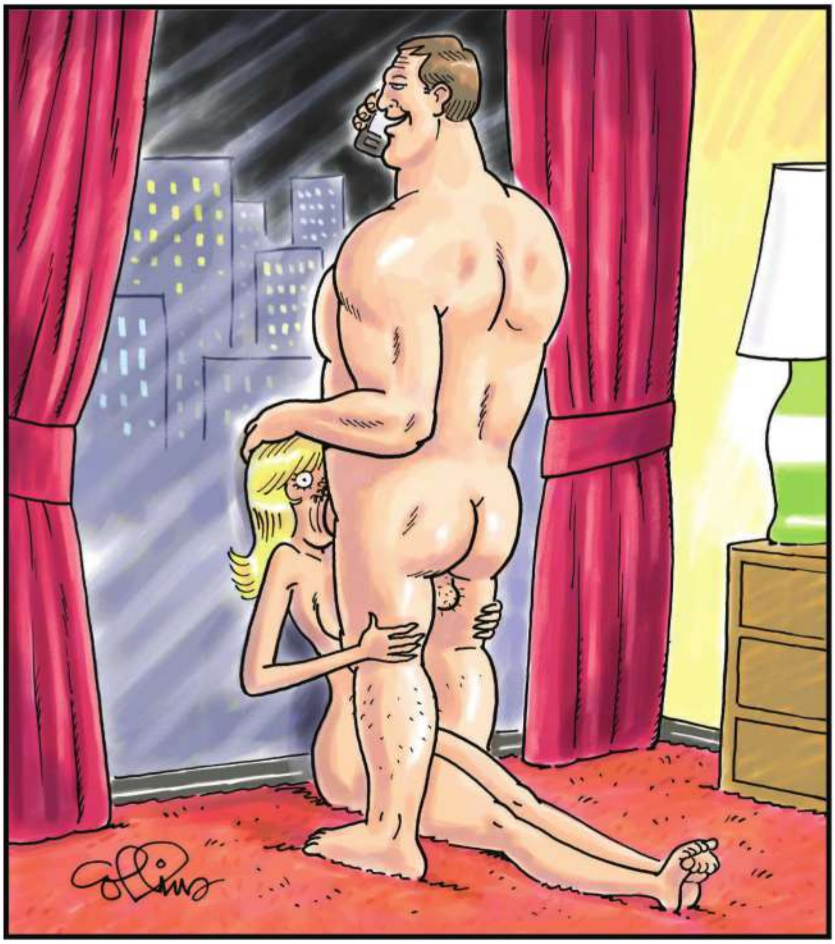
"You can definitely be too horny and too needy. If a woman wants it to be a great experience, she must approach it properly and turn the man on as well. Most men, especially experienced men, are not machines. It doesn't matter how freaky you are. As long as you take the right approach, it's going to be an amazing experience. Men act like men and women act like women."

"Gigolos is going to be around for a while. I guarantee this is going to be the best season. Not only have we grown independently, we've grown as a group. The ratings have gone up every season. I think finally this season we all just said fuck it and went for it. There is some crazy shit. I guarantee it's going to be the best one."



MY WIFE DOESN'T UNDERSTAND ME...
YEAH... MY WIFE WON'T SUCK MY COCK, LICK MY BALLS OR TONGUE MY ASS EITHER.

"I do have to be in control and there has to be some innocence there, or me becoming 'meat' will not happen. I would prefer a woman to tell me to fuck her as opposed to her taking my clothes off or being rough with me. I want a woman to act like a woman, not a man. And I'm not a fan of being told what to do unless it involves me doing something to her, such as anal, hair-pulling or, in a recent case, fisting. When a woman leads you to her bedroom and throws you a box of latex gloves, what goes through your mind? Not only was she a fan of fisting, she was also a squirter! Nothing turns me on more than a woman being turned on. I've ruined a mattress or two."



"Can I take a message? She can't talk right now."

CATCHING FIRE

THE REAL HUNGER GAMES

IF YOU GET WORKED UP ABOUT THINGS LIKE A GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN OR THE NEXT CELEBRITY SCANDAL, DON'T. WE GOT BIGGER PROBLEMS.

BY
M. ALLEN NATHAN

LET'S START WITH THE WORD DIRE.

As in "I'm in dire need of a blowjob" or "We're in dire need of a beer run." Here's one that matters: "The whole planet is in dire trouble."

According to virtually every climate scientist who doesn't have his head up his ass and refutes the notion that Adam and Eve played with dinosaurs, global warming hit the planet big time in the summer of 2012. The consequences of that phenomenon, analyzed in a new study by Dr. Aiguo Dai of the National Center for Atmospheric Research, are—you guessed it—dire.

Dr. Dai and the bulk of the reputable scientific community have come to the grim conclusion that unless we start getting our environmental act together (as of like yesterday), civilization is pretty much, well…screwed.

During the current worldwide drought, unequivocally caused by the rising amount of carbon dioxide emitted by global oil use, the United States has experienced its fifth-worst drought in history—comparable to the cataclysmic Dust Bowl of the 1930s. Eighty-seven percent of the nation's corn crop, 85% of the soybean crop and 63% of the hay-producing acreage have been burnt to a crisp.

So what about those biblical-style floods in Colorado last year? All that warm air means more cloud moisture and more rain—sometimes. But climate change doesn't mean just hot and dry. It means more extreme weather patterns. As the scientists say, the hydrologic cycle is going to get more intense—i.e., we're fucked. >>

> “EIGHTY-SEVEN PERCENT OF THE NATION'S CORN CROP, 85% OF THE SOYBEAN CROP AND 63% OF THE HAY-PRODUCING ACREAGE HAVE BEEN BURNT TO A CRISP.”

Protesters conduct a die-in against the Keystone Pipeline and oil from Canada's Alberta Tar Sands.

Exactly how fucked? Well, falling crop yields translate into less feed for poultry and cattle, which means Americans will be facing climbing prices for chicken, beef, pork, dairy products and about a zillion other staples. Unfortunately, most of our sun-fried commodities are also found in a slew of other stuff: packaged foods, cosmetics, shampoos, you name it.

Bottom line, as a result of the recent drought, the Department of Agriculture estimates that consumers will spend almost an extra thousand bucks on groceries per household by next year. You can afford that, right?

It gets worse. In case you're thinking all we have to do is grit our teeth for a year or so while amateur climate experts like Texas Governor Rick Perry and his crowd pray to Jesus to miraculously make our crops grow again, here's some more pesky science to ruin your NFL Sunday.

Actual experts predict the United States, along with the rest of the globe, will suffer a series of severe droughts for the next two decades at a minimum—which means, and here comes the hammer, once soil dries out, it maintains a memory of previous droughts. That makes it far more likely that the U.S. is going to have a string of severe drought years—an ongoing hellscape of climate change.

A modern Dust Bowl guarantees a pretty sour future for our Big Gulp, Supersize Me, eat like you're headed to the electric chair tomorrow society. The ballooning food bill of tomorrow is not only the beginning of a steep, neverending climb in prices, but also the start of an apocalypse. That's right, the fucking apocalypse.

Thanks to the way we've mucked up the planet, the western United States and the semiarid region from North Dakota to Texas will develop semipermanent desert conditions. Rain, when it does come, will be to the extreme, with heavy flooding. (Think a Hurricane Katrina every other month.)

> “THE BALLOONING FOOD BILL OF TOMORROW IS NOT ONLY THE BEGINNING OF A STEEP, NEVERENDING CLIMB IN PRICES, BUT ALSO THE START OF AN APOCALYPSE.”

Economic losses will be catastrophic. Food, even if you can afford it, will become scarcer and scarcer, and fuel costs will rise to astronomical levels. There will no longer be a need for anyone to rent any of the Mad Max movies—because America will have become the real-life sequel.

Time to get out of Dodge? Maybe move to Europe, China, Africa? There's got to be someplace where a regular American dude can rely on an endless supply of reasonably priced buffalo wings and burgers, right?

Wrong. If our crops go to hell, everyone else is having even worse trouble. In 2008, when there was a serious worldwide drought and financial speculators drove up the price of basic commodities to alarming levels, sporadic food riots were the result from Haiti to Bangladesh, as well as increased levels of mass starvation across the globe.

That unpleasant scenario is Little League if the current American drought gets more severe. An incalculable amount of the planet's inhabitants will go hungry or die. Guaranteed.

Consider Ethiopia. In 1984-85, drought and subsequent rising food prices caused a famine that killed over 1 million people—and we're talking about just one country. If the U.S. can no longer supply the world with grain, the sight of neighborhood food riots around the globe will become as commonplace as mini-malls—and during the next go-around they'll get even uglier, inevitably leading to full-scale civil rebellions and toppled governments.

> "IF THE U.S. CAN NO LONGER SUPPLY THE WORLD WITH GRAIN, THE SIGHT OF NEIGHBORHOOD FOOD RIOTS AROUND THE GLOBE WILL BECOME AS COMMONPLACE AS MINI-MALLS."

It's all so unpleasant. We could just not think about it. Half of Congress wants us to simply continue feeding our livestock the corn we now have trouble growing anyway and also keep drilling for more oil, especially with the exciting new technology now popular in Canada: bituminous sand extraction.

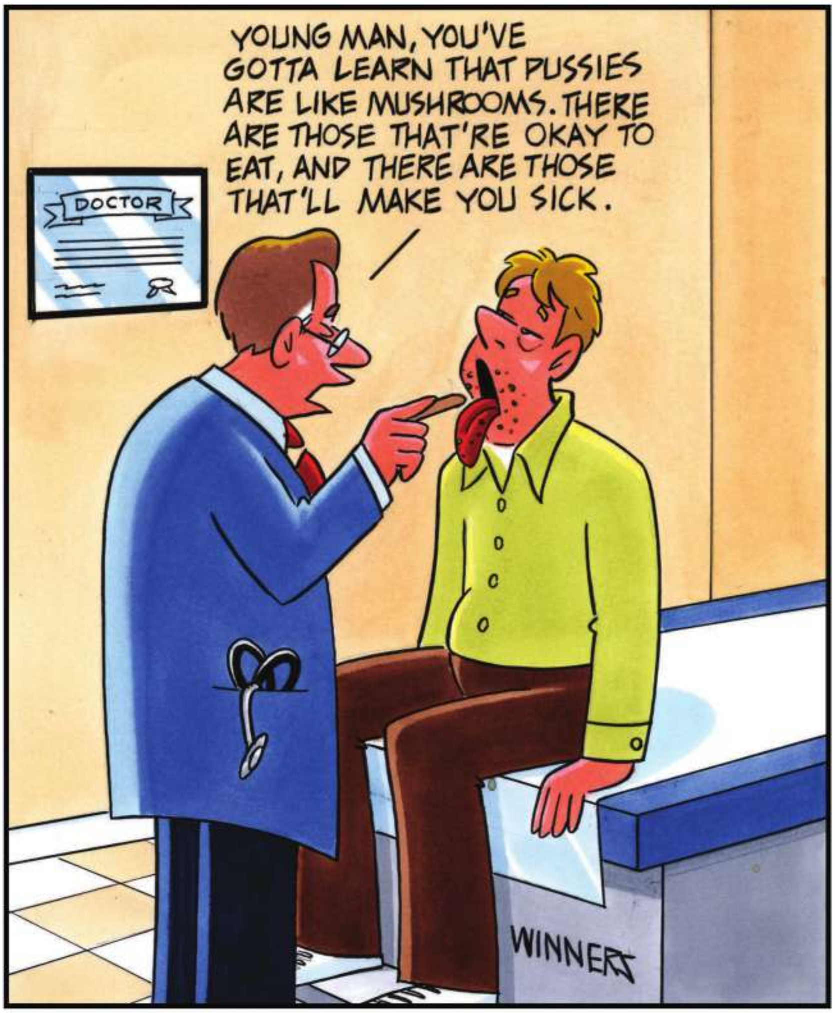
Seventy percent of the world's oil sands—endless acres with luscious, usable oil underneath—have been across our hockey-loving neighbor's border forever, just sitting there as part of its useless breathtaking scenery, not making Wall Street one penny. That inefficient scenario changed a few years ago when Big Oil figured out how to extract good old-fashioned "crude" from Canada's tar-filled clay and sandstone hills. Of course, the process generates a 12% higher amount of greenhouse gases per barrel of final product compared to the production of conventional oil. Unconcerned about a minor irritant like a 12% greenhouse gas increase, the good folks at Chevron and several of its gigantic petro-drilling partners as of this writing are aggressively setting up shop to start sucking the stuff up.

Unfortunately, if we were to continue to fully exploit this breakthrough energy source (as many lobbyists in Washington urge) and also continue to burn conventional oil, gas and coal supplies at current rates, in a short few hundred years the concentration of carbon dioxide in the air would eventually reach levels surpassing the Pliocene Era of 2.5 million years ago. That much heat-trapping gas would guarantee the actual disintegration of the polar ice sheets. Sea levels would rise to tsunami levels, and most coastal cities would be washed away. Global temperature would turn Earth into a giant microwave oven. Twenty to 50% of the planet's population would be driven to extinction—and that's just the humans. Say goodbye to your house pets. That is, before you cook them for dinner.

Extinction. Not next summer's Hollywood blockbuster, actual human extinction. The previous heavyweight tenant on the continent, the ancient Mayan empire, once had what was arguably the most advanced civilization in the Americas. It made dramatic breakthroughs in everything from science to social engineering. The Mayans had money, great cities, great armies and great power—and then it all turned to shit. Scientists have documented that what fueled the demise of their civilization was—drum roll please—climate change. There was a severe drought, and the Mayans' inability to deal with it resulted in critical water shortages, which in turn led to social unrest, diseases and the ultimate collapse of the entire society. >>

> "THERE WILL NO LONGER BE A NEED FOR ANYONE TO RENT ANY OF THE MAD MAX MOVIES—BECAUSE AMERICA WILL HAVE BECOME THE REAL-LIFE SEQUEL."

Trucks mine the tar sand oil fields in Alberta.



YOUNG MAN, YOU'VE GOTTA LEARN THAT PUSSIES ARE LIKE MUSHROOMS. THERE ARE THOSE THAT'RE OKAY TO EAT, AND THERE ARE THOSE THAT'LL MAKE YOU SICK.

THE WHITE MAN STILL COMES IN SUCH GREAT NUMBERS. THEY DISRESPECT THE LAND AND KILL THE BUFFALO FOR MERE SPORT!
WE DEFINITELY NEED SOME IMMIGRATION REFORM!

> “GLOBAL TEMPERATURE WOULD TURN EARTH INTO A GIANT MICROWAVE OVEN. TWENTY TO 50% OF THE PLANET'S POPULATION WOULD BE DRIVEN TO EXTINCTION—AND THAT'S JUST THE HUMANS.”

The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (an impeccably smart bunch) recently published a study stating that the weather conditions which sank the Mayan civilization are similar to the challenges facing our climate today.

“The warning is clear,” the study stated. “What seems like a minor reduction in water availability may lead to devastating, long-lasting problems.…Today we have the benefit of awareness, and we should act accordingly.”

For those who fan themselves in the rising heat with their Bible, they also should consider what most Americans agree is the best-known phrase in it: “God helps those who help themselves.” But truth be told, the bon mot actually isn't in the Good Book. The real purveyor was Ben Franklin, a Deist who not only believed in God, but also “found Christian dogma unintelligible.” People just assume the words are Scripture because the logic resonates.

The only insights of someone named Ben that Americans are currently interested in are the ones emanating from the first-string quarterback of the Pittsburgh Steelers. It's urgently time to reexamine the wisdom of one of our Founding Fathers and consider what Benjamin Franklin tried to teach us as a country—if we still want to have one. At this point, to paraphrase The Hunger Games, the odds are not in our favor. H

HUSTLER® HONEY

MAY 2014

CALL ME AT 1-800-HUSTLER

(1-800-487-8537)
CALLER MUST BE 18 YEARS OLD OR OVER.
COST $3.99/MINUTE.

At breakfast one morning Darlene told her hubby Max all about her strange dream: "I was at an auction for penises. The big ones sold for $1,000 and the tiny ones for $10."

"What about one my size?" Max asked.

"It didn't even get a bid!" Darlene scoffed.

Of course Max felt a little insulted. So the very next morning he recounted his own dream: "I was at an auction for vaginas. The supertight ones sold for thousands of dollars. The used, loose pussies brought $10."

Darlene was curious. "What about one like mine?"

"That's where they held the auction."

Question: What does it mean when a blonde impresses you with her intelligence?

Answer: You've had too much to drink.

Marilyn brought home an urn containing her husband's remains and poured them onto the kitchen counter. Tracing her fingers through the ashes, she started talking: "Irving, remember that fur coat you promised me? Well, I bought it with the insurance money."

After a minute, Marilyn asked, "Remember that new car you promised me? Well, I bought that with the insurance money too. And that emerald necklace? Insurance money."

Finally, still tracing her finger through the ashes, Marilyn snickered, "Irving, remember that blowjob I promised you? Here it comes!"

Judge Johnson looked down at a defendant and pronounced, "You are charged with murdering a schoolteacher with a chainsaw."

Suddenly a man in the courtroom shouted, "You lying bastard!"

"Silence!" the judge demanded, banging his gavel. Again he addressed the defendant: "Secondly, you are charged with beating a paperboy to death with a shovel."

"You tightwad!" the spectator blurted.

"Quiet!" the judge ordered before continuing. "Thirdly, you the defendant are accused of killing a mailman with an electric drill."

"You cheap sonofa—" the spectator began to yell, but the judge thundered back, "If you don't explain the reason for your outbursts immediately, I will hold you in contempt!"

"I've lived next to that lying bastard for ten years now," the spectator responded. "But do you think he ever once had a tool when I asked to borrow one?"

A woman sat down opposite Fat Al on a bus and couldn't help but comment, "If that stomach was on a woman, I'd think she was pregnant."

Fat Al shot back, "It was. She is."

Old Hank was boasting about his new hearing aid to his neighbor. "It cost me $5,000, but it's the best there is."

"Really?" the neighbor wondered. "What kind is it?"

"Twelve-thirty."

Question: What do you call a lawyer gone bad?

Answer: Senator.

A middle-aged couple were walking down the street when a beautiful young woman blew the husband a kiss. "I met her last week," the husband muttered. "Professionally of course."

"Which profession?" the wife inquired. "Yours or hers?"

BIG WET BREASTS

JULES JORDAN VIDEO. DIRECTOR: WILLIAM H. STARRING: SUMMER BRIELLE, ALEXIS FORD, VALENTINA NAPPI, NIKITA VON JAMES & ALISON TYLER.

Gee, wonder what this movie's about. You got to love something that delivers exactly what it promises. You assholes in Washington hear that? The first thing you got to do in an honest picture like this—once you get the titular Big Breasts onboard, of course—is to get those knockers wet. Five words: big bottles of baby oil! Alexis Ford's plumper-than-ever plums get squirted and slicked up, then slathered with cum. You wanted big wet breasts, you got 'em! Italian jawdropper Valentina Nappi—whose last name is a play on her Neapolitan origins—follows up by getting her shitpipe as generously lubed as her titties and taking the kind of divine assfucking that inspired Dante. Curvaceous Summer Brielle storms into the movie like some kind of ultra-MILF trophy wife. You'll be whacking it with one hand and trying to give her your credit cards with the other, but that's why they call it the money shot! Alison Tyler and Nikita Von James put in good, sloppy moan parties too, with Nikita's shimmering killer balloon tits the most mesmerizing pair of anything since those hot Siamese twins did that sex tape. (Or did we just dream that?) Anyway, props to ace director William H. He still shoots some of the best-looking smut out there.

Let's face it: It's a bitch to find household help that won't clean out your wallet or polish your dick without threatening to tell the wife. HUSTLER is here to help with a screening process that goes "deeper" than anyone else's. Box-cover blonde Cameron Dee starts our little job fair by cleaning out the pipes. She'll make you wonder if Dee is short for Drano. Supercute teen Courtney Shea delivers a bone-throbbing wake up call for her boss with ear-blistering dirty talk from start to finish. Holy Christ, does she kiss her mother with that mouth? We knew Riley Reece was trouble when she showed up with tats that screamed "I hate dusting!" Fortunately, she loves sucking up cum. Hired! Missy Martinez prefers sleeping to working, but it's real hard to argue with those massive melons. Housekeeper rule number one: If you're gonna be lazy, expect to wake up with sticky boobs. Katie Summers looks like she thinks bleach is for hair, not laundry. She leaves the house a mess, but let's be honest: We didn't hire her to do anything but fill your spank bank. You can clean up your own beer cans and cum rags! Order I Banged the Maid and never use Dial-a-Maid again. Call 800-763-8271 ext. 7675 or visit HustlerStore.com. —Andy Parker

OFF! unloads

BY ORIANA SMALL AKA ASHLEY BLUE

The setting is a seedy Hollywood fast-food dive called Oki-Dog. Oriana Small is joined by two men: Dimitri Coats and Keith Morris. She's a smut star turned writer and journalist. The men are founding members of punk supergroup OFF! Hardcore meets hardcore.

Dimitri sits down with his food. Keith informs him that he's not eating an original Oki-Dog.

KEITH: The real Oki-Dog is a tortilla with American cheese, pastrami, two hotdogs, chili, and you could get sauerkraut, relish or mustard.

ORIANA: Whose idea was it to put this band together?

KEITH: (Laughs.) It wasn't premeditated. Originally Dimitri approached my other band [Circle Jerks]. This band hadn't done anything new creatively in 14 years. It was time to do something. We'd milked it for as long as we could.

DIMITRI: You guys were great, by the way. Did I ever tell you that? Those first three records especially. I still listen to them even though they fired me.

KEITH: I don't.

DIMITRI: I kind of deserved to be fired though. I was saying things like "Come on, guys, it's been like two weeks and you haven't even written a song? I could write a whole Circle Jerks album in two weeks!" I would say shit like that to get them riled. To make a long story short, Zander [Schloss] and I almost got into a fistfight. [Greg] Hetson fired me that night. And that was over a song they were trying to write, that we turned into "Upside Down."

KEITH: It's all been played before. It's rock music. How many rock bands are there? 19,000 million zillion. There's only going to be so many things that you can do on the guitar. Silly string. It just keeps coming out of the can.

ORIANA: What made you want to sing, Keith?

KEITH: Nothing made me want to sing. I was originally in SST Electronics one summer afternoon. It was a Saturday, so we weren't really working; we were just kind of hanging out, shooting the breeze and talking about music. And the radio was on. "Search and Destroy" by Iggy and the Stooges comes on, and I wig out. I jump up on the desk, do some kind of a flip and land on my face on the dirty wooden floor. I get up and I'm screaming and yelling, "Search and destroy. I'm the world's forgotten boy!" Then I jumped up on the couch in the middle of the room. Because of the springs on the cushions, I did some kind of a leap, landing on my face. Right about the time that song came to an end, >>

> "I WANT MY PORN STARS TO BE FUCKED UP AND COMING IN LOOKING TO PARTY AND LOSE THEIR MINDS. AND ALMOST FORGET THAT THEY'RE EVEN BEING SHOT. THE DARK CELEBRATION OF SEXUALITY!"

I was still screaming and yelling, and Greg Ginn looked at me and said, "You're not playing drums. You're the singer."

ORIANA: What kind of groupies came to Circle Jerks shows?

KEITH: They looked like they were members of the German Olympic shot put team. They didn't swim or play volleyball because they didn't have volleyball back then. Shaved? No. We're talking about women that were a couple parts away from being men. These women had no breasts. There was no camel toe happening.

DIMITRI: Sometimes you had to go take the plunge.

KEITH: Sometimes you had to go to the public urinal.

DIMITRI: And you'd develop relationships to where you came back to town, and you'd get maybe a postcard that would say, "Directly after the set. I like you just like that. Unshowered and really gnarly. Meet me in the bathroom."

KEITH: Maybe that happened for you on a Burning Brides tour. But that never happened on any of the Get in the Van tours.

ORIANA: Do fans get crazy at OFF! shows?

DIMITRI: When we played Coachella, a guy in the pit fucked his elbow up so bad that the bone was sticking through.

KEITH: He was the only punk rock guy at Coachella. Who goes into a tent filled with girls in hot pants and sandals, skimpy summertime outfits, and spazzes out thinking that he's actually making an impression? He had to be taken out on a stretcher.

DIMITRI: There were girls at our shows?

ORIANA: How are OFF! fans compared to fans of other bands you've been in?

DIMITRI: Definitely more girls at other bands. But for me it's starting to feel like a continuation of what I was doing now that we're like opening for the [Red Hot] Chili Peppers and doing festivals, seeing our name on a bill with a bunch of mainstream bands. I'm really lucky. I've only been in two bands, and they've been pretty successful. Keith over here is three for three.

KEITH: Bug Lamp was my million-dollar band. Midget Handjob was a $30,000 band that I did while I was dying of diabetes.

ORIANA: Have you ever been with a midget?

KEITH: I am a midget.

ORIANA: A lot of your songs are about your early punk days and growing up in Hermosa Beach, California.

KEITH: We created some lyrics about [Hollywood punk rock club] The Masque. Hanging out with Darby Crash [Germs] and Derf Scratch [Fear]. The girls that hung out at The Masque had either bleach-blond hair or jet-black hair. There usually wasn't anything in between. Unless it was blue, green, red or orange. Everybody partied together—200, 300 people. Once it spread out to the suburbs, that's when you started to have the shows where there'd be 800 to 1,000 people.

The old-guard Hollywood crowd were totally bummed out by the jockishness, athleticism, amped-up, kicked-up energy, which led to more elbows flying. Instead of the pogo, there were people jumping off the stage and the balcony. The slam dance. I preferred the '60s at the Whiskey a Go Go with the girls in the cages go-go dancing. Girls in miniskirts were much more attractive than the female linebackers showing up at the gigs. There were some pretty girls, but it was always a competition. For every girl there would be like 30 guys.

DIMITRI: Not unlike a bukkake.

ORIANA: Is pornography art?

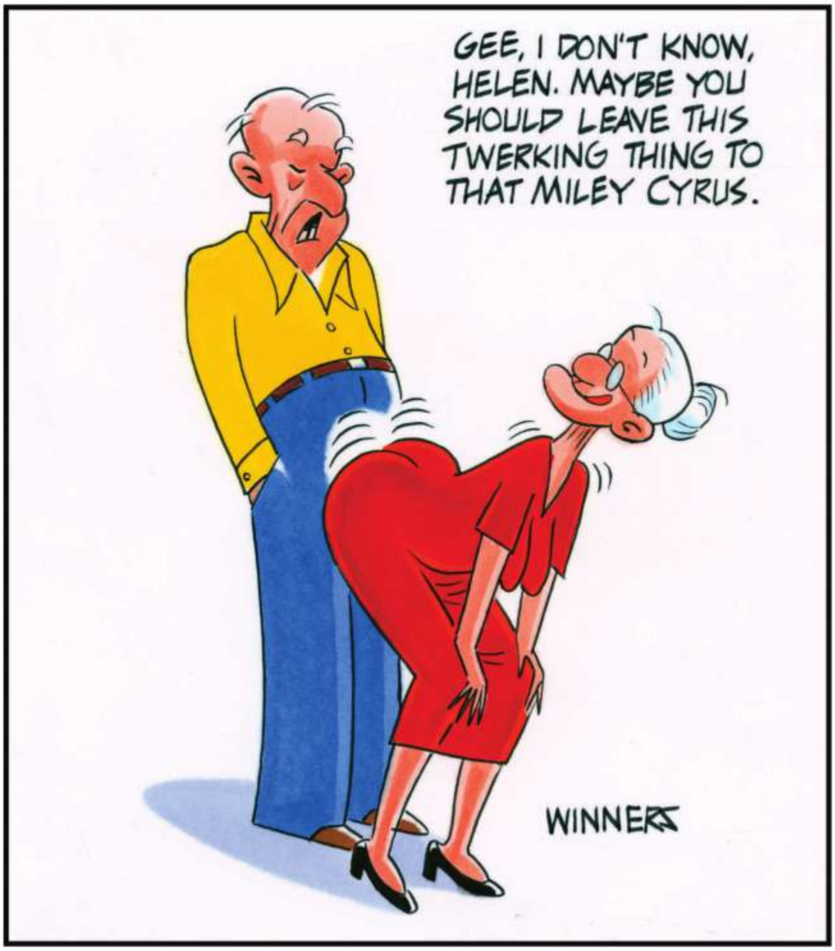
DIMITRI: There are certain scenes that are transcendent. Pornography is a very brave form of acting. As a voyeur, I truly want to believe that these people are getting off. And I've always wanted someone to make a real, proper documentary on porn. Not just a porn star sitting in a chair and talking about it. I want to see the drugs being done, if they are being done. I want to see what happens before they get there and if they're going to keep partying. What are they doing? I know some of it's mechanical. But in my mind, I want my porn stars to be fucked up and coming in looking to party and lose their minds. And almost forget that they're even being shot. The dark celebration of sexuality!

KEITH: Seka created some pretty interesting pictures.

DIMITRI: One time I played a show here in town at The Echo, and I was hanging out at a house party afterward, doing some drinking. It was a good night, so we wanted to get some blow. So the girl who lived there makes a call, and after an hour in comes these two girls. One of them is obviously the coke dealer. Money is being exchanged, and I say to my friend, "I think that's a porn star! She's pretty famous. Her eyes like roll back into her head like The Exorcist when she comes."

Finally I worked up the courage to ask her, "Are you who I think you are?" She says, "Yes, I am." Awesome! At that point I was already pretty high, and I asked her all the questions I wanted to ask. And she was very giving with her information, and it was a great night! I'd only been living in L.A. for a few weeks, and I was like, "Los Angeles! This couldn't happen anywhere else!"

KEITH: It's certainly not going to happen outside the garbage dump in Boise, Idaho.



GEE, I DON'T KNOW, HELEN. MAYBE YOU SHOULD LEAVE THIS TWERKING THING TO THAT MILEY CYRUS.

BY ERICKA RACHELLE MENDOZA

With a drop-dead-gorgeous kisser and a booty that defies gravity, you'd never guess that Telli Swift spends her workdays tending to patients in a bustling emergency room. But the inked beauty says she's all about helping people, so becoming a nurse was her natural calling.

Born in the Philippines and raised in Yokosuka, Japan, Telli is now a typical New Yorker when it comes to two of her pastimes: She digs watching basketball and going to movies. But only certain guys will get to watch Ms. Swift when she wants to play in the bedroom: "I love being with a handsome man who has a sexy body and beautiful teeth. But I have to admit that sexually I like to be in control. I love to make a man feel good."

Of course we can only imagine what's in store with a naughty nurse like Telli, who shares a fantasy with many air travelers: "I would love to join the Mile-High Club!" H

"My favorite position is man on top with my legs draped over his shoulders."

ANGELINA

"It is an honor to be published in HUSTLER," declares college student Angelina, 22, a fashion-merchandising major from Salem, Ohio. We're tickled pink that the 5-foot-6 Buckeye Stater—who labels herself as "funny, cute and shy at first"—has dropped by to be fashionably nude. "I've been naked at a beach at night," the running enthusiast elaborates, "and I would love to streak through campus." Dashing to her entertainment menu, Angelina spells out "horror flicks, any Disney movie, Law & Order and The Big Bang Theory." As for amorous banging, the Taylor Swift fan asserts, "I like it rough and crazy! My boyfriend tells me I satisfy him sexually and spiritually, and I always make him feel important." That includes playing a pivotal role in one of Angelina's fantasies: "I dress up in a cheerleader outfit, my boyfriend puts on a football uniform, and we have sex on every yard marker on a football field." —Photos by Friend

LEIJA

"I'm an ex-Mormon, so I wanted to do something shocking," trumpets Leija, 26, a skin-mag tyro from Provo, Utah. "I love being naked and the center of attention." But the 5-foot-6 Beehive Stater—who's big on "dancing at clubs, partying and drinking"—loathes steady employment. "I float between jobs," Leija explains. "I don't really like doing one thing, so if it pays me some money for a few days, then that's it. I'm kinda like a flower child." And a budding bi gal: "I love men, but I'm starting to get into women. I just ate out a girl while getting fucked doggy from behind. Then the guy fucked her, and I licked up his cum out of her veejay." Leija, who also savors spicy food and "corrupting good Mormon boys," is a very spunky jezebel. "Sucking a cock in front of another person turns me on," she fesses up. "I just gotta get fucked hard after that." Leija's sexual fantasy comes as no surprise: "I want to be in a dozen-person orgy on a beach." Brigham Young must be rolling in his grave. —Photos by Kickback Productions

"My ass is my best part. That and my mouth. I give great head."

"I'm not ashamed of stripping naked in a crowd and having sex right then and there."

SABRINA & SAMATHA

It's again time to rave that two Beavers are better than one. In pink panties, very briefly, is Sabrina, 20, a 5-foot-6 nursing student from Trenton, New Jersey. Her lithe, 2-inch-taller partner is Samatha, 19, a "very bi" receptionist from Clearwater, Florida. What's perfectly clear is that these hot chicks clicked as a shutterbug clicked away. "I'm an open-minded, strong-willed, bisexual diva," Sabrina coos. "You have to keep your sex life different or it'll get boring," Samatha reckons. "I love being fucked by a guy, but I have my best orgasms when a girl is eating me out." Props to the ravenous duo for getting buck naked and letting us watch them dine. —Photos by Friend

"My nipples always get perky when someone licks my kitty kat."

"We hope you enjoyed our girlie show. Had a blast."

NATASHA

"It's always hot to be naked," exults Natasha, 32, a Ukrainian-Romanian ballerina and burlesque showgirl with a home in Miami Beach, Florida. Besides showing off her 5-foot-8 bod, the "bubbly, friendly and down-to-earth" Beav reveals some of her biggest kicks: "I love dancing, taekwondo, shopping, traveling, Two and a Half Men and having lots of sex." No wonder Natasha, who's keen on being the prima donna in Swan Lake, had a stint being very friendly at a brothel near Lake Tahoe and now yearns to be a porn actress. "I am the kind of seductive woman all men dream about," Natasha touts. "I am as flexible as a gymnast, I can deep-throat—just ask Ron Jeremy—and anal sex is okay when the chemistry is hot. Need I say more?" How about a ribald fantasy, Natasha? "I want to be a DP girl for three Vikings from Norway." —Photos by Lance Kincaid

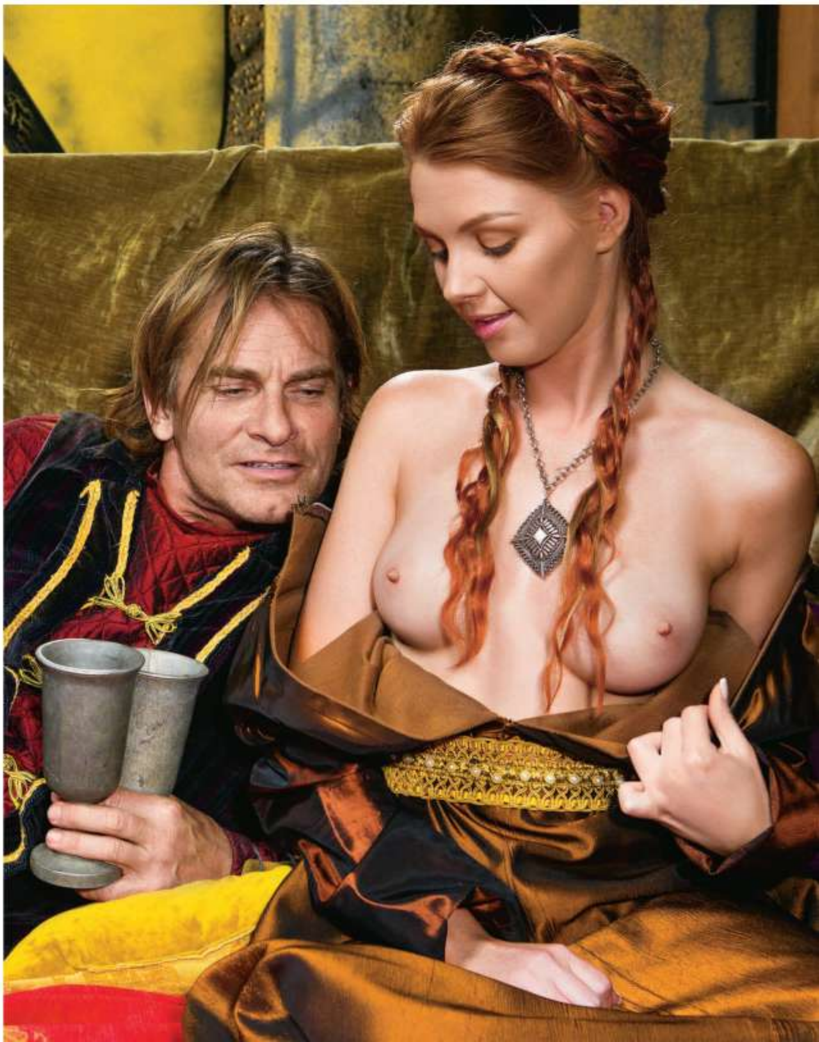
INTERVIEWS BY ALEX RENTON

PHOTOGRAPHY COURTESY HUSTLER VIDEO



KIRSTEN PRICE

You're doing a girl-on-girl scene, correct?

Yes, with Spencer Scott. She's very sexy and pretty and looks exactly like the character she's playing, Daenerys Targaryen.

Are you playing a specific character?

No, I'm just kind of like this slave girl handmaiden. I'm just like her girl that does all her shit.

That she has sex with?

Yeah, I have sex with her because she's only had sex with one man, her husband, and he's dead. So she needs to experience more sexually, and I help her with that.

Now is that a job you'd be open to full-time?

Yeah, of course. She's hot. I would do her all day every day.

Are you a fan of the show?

I'm a massive fan. I've been watching since Season One, and I'm really excited for it to come on again. It'll give me something to watch on Sunday nights.

Which character do you wish you were having sex with?

Um, actually, the character that I'm having sex with is my favorite character on the show.

So this is your fantasy come to life?

It really is! Spencer looks so much like the real girl, especially when you put her in that costume. She looks identical to her. I love it.

Since you're living out your fantasy, do you have any input as to what happens?

I think we can do pretty much whatever we want.

What are you looking forward to doing?

Her. Licking her vagina, having sex with her, making her come, all the good things that happen in a very good girl-on-girl scene. So it should be really hot. I'm going to motorboat those titties!

SPENCER SCOTT

So you're playing Daenerys, and your character has dragons—

I'm the mother of dragons.

Right, your kids are full-blown dragons. Do you watch the show at all?

You know, I started watching a few episodes just because I knew I had this role. I usually don't, but I'm going to start because Daenerys sounds like a pretty badass bitch.

Is there any dragon sex in the movie?

From what I'm told, she has three baby dragons. She had eggs and they hatch, but there's no dragon sex, no.

Would you have sex with a dragon?

I would not have sex with a dragon. I think that would be a little scary!

What if they got a guy in a dragon costume? Would you be okay with that?

I don't do guys. I only do girls!

You only do girls?

Yes, the princess only does girls in this movie.

But in your career you do guys?

No, I just do girl-girl and solo.

That's fun. Do you do guys in your private life?

Of course.

Just checking. That would be weird if you said, "I'm not a lesbian. I just don't do guys." Are you going to make the transition?

Probably not, no.

Why's that?

It's just not my thing. Other girls can do it, but I just, I'd rather just do girls on camera and do men in my personal life.

Do your fans bother you about it?

Some of them do. Most of them like the fact that I just do girls. They're kind of like, "Stick with that, don't do boys."

When you do a solo or girl-girl scene, do you do penetration with dildos and stuff?

Yeah.

Do you do anal penetration?

I don't. That's something I only do off camera because that's something that can go terribly wrong.

Or terribly right.

That's true, but you don't know unless you try that person out before, I think. >>

BRANDI LOVE

BRANDI LOVE

Who are you playing?

Today I'm playing Cersei Lannister!

You mentioned you're a huge fan of the show—

I'm a huge fan!

Are you having sex with any characters today?

Of course I am! Am I allowed to say? Because it's quite a twist to the real story.

Oh interesting, no spoilers. Okay. Who would you want to have sex with on the show?

If we're staying true to it, Cersei.

Your own character?

She's a pretty twisted cat! She has sex with her brother. Also, I believe her nephew, and God knows the rest. She keeps it in the family. She's a pretty horny little queen. Yeah, that wouldn't be a good idea, to have sex with your family, so I actually like HUSTLER's twist on her.

So what is it? Barnyard animals?

No, no, no!
